

January Newsletter

Our pictures this month came from some of Dorian's favorite places to walk. The view from the Lander cemetery is spectacular. Other pictures include the beauty of a Wyoming winter.

Here we are in 2011. It seems as though we just celebrate New Years of 2010. How quickly the time that doesn't exist is moving.

We had Christmas, New Year's, the 9th is Dorian's birthday and the pace has not slowed down since we returned home from the east. Our CD's of New Year's are ready.

We have wonderful, amazing CD's and DVD's of enlightening, growth oriented information on sale during January. St. Germain is raising the vibrational frequency with each group and Evening. The November intensive set the tone for the Evenings for 2011. We would love to have more people partake in the information. For the month of January we will offer the $30 CD's for $15 and the $25 CD's for $10. Our DVD's will be $25. We have many wonderful subjects plus the full year of the "Virtues"—Evenings 2009, the "Know Thyself" Series—Evenings 2010 and groups for 2008, 2009 and 2010. Simply go to the website, to Products and Services and make your purchases.

Over the last four or five years I have had some interesting experiences with those who have passed over to the other side of the veil that we have called death. St. Germain tells us more all of the time that death is an illusion that we have believed in to the point that it seems real. In 2006, Dorian's Mom passed. She was almost 90 when she left her body. I had always had good non-verbal communication with Betty and had done healing work with her in the many ups and downs of dementia and the aging process complicated by diabetes and other health challenges. On the day that she passed I was driving home from northern Wyoming. I was in the Shell Canyon when I felt Betty's presence very strongly. I said, "Betty I believe that if you wish to go on, Karen (Dorian's sister) will be all right with it now. (Karen had energetically been attempting to keep Mom from leaving because of her concerns for her.) Betty said, "Really"? I told her that I felt that Karen had made peace with the process and that she would be ok. When I got home there was a note on the floor in front of the door, so that I would see it, telling me that Dorian had gotten a call that Mom was passing and that she was attempting to catch a flight to Oregon. Betty had already transitioned by the time that Dorian reached Denver on her way.

During the last almost five years I have been able to stay in touch with Betty and to observe how things are in that dimension. They really are not that different. Betty had never had a lot of TLC in her life, so for the first "year" she had a beautiful room with a huge window looking out across a golf course. Dorian's dad was a golfer and he would come to check on Betty. They had had a difficult relationship on Earth and Betty would not allow him to come into her room, but he was around. Time has passed and Betty is still "living" in that place, but now she is up and about. She has friends and does things that she would have loved to do when she was here. Some people might say it is not an outstanding life, but it is peaceful and filled with fun and friends, so I would call it a good life.

Another friend of ours passed over about two years ago. She had always been afraid of going to Hell, so when she passed she created a place of darkness for herself. St. Germain was her Gatekeeper and a week or two after her transition he came to me and said, "She did not really believe in me, so I am going to send you in to help her out." I went to a place that was like a long hall, about twenty feet wide and perhaps sixty feet long. I stepped through an open doorway and I could see another open doorway at the other end of the hall. I called her name and I heard her say, "Who is it?" I told her who I was and she immediately said, "Get me out of here". She was sitting on the floor in the furthest, darkest corner with her head between her knees. I asked her to come and join me and I would walk her to the open door at the far end of the hall. We walked together to the door and when we stepped out into the light it looked just like Reno, NV which is where she was living when she passed. Over to the right were the mountains and then she was gone. This woman was an avid outdoors woman, who loved hiking and traveling into the wilderness. A few days later I checked on her to see how things were going and she was riding the wind. She looked like Harry Potter without the broom. She was absolutely delighted with the freedom, which was something that she had always said she wanted when she was in this plane of existence.

I thought I would share these experiences because I do not feel that I have some special privilege, but that everyone can have this connection if they are willing. You cannot connect into the higher realms in need, anguish, desperation or fear. All of these emotions block the way. Perhaps, the reason that I can connect is objectivity. St. Germain tells us that this veil is getting thinner and thinner all of the time and that we can actually work with these beings for spiritual evolution. They do not do this for us. In fact if we begin to depend on them for our changes they will back away or seem to disappear. In the higher planes neediness and dependency are repulsive energy and they simply amplify the old energy of separation. We are all being lead to remember how to live well in those frequencies, but fighting, greed, avarice and manipulation simply hold the old illusions in place. We are required to change our belief systems and our mind-set about how life works, because the shifts on the planet are making a new perspective a prerequisite.

I know that there are many people who have suffered the loss of someone near and dear and I felt that if anyone could be helped by these experiences it would be worth it to share.

2011 is a year of Preparedness/Preparation for the changes that are coming more quickly all of the time. We can no longer ease into the idea of what might be coming. We must live it, have the experience in order to understand. We have held the changes at bay with discussion, debate and delay. Now there is no more time to decide if we wish to change. Change we will! It is up to us to hold positive intensions for how those changes will affect us. We can make it heaven or hell depending on where we focus our thoughts. The further we move into the higher dimensional frequencies the quicker our thoughts manifest. The test is to hold a positive prayer-field. We are constantly exposed to fear-based media and control of the old ways. Everyone has the ability to make positive changes in their own life and those changes have an optimistic, up lifting affect on the collective. We can no longer decide how others must change. We must remember that our free will is the next greatest gift after love. We are required to hold the intension that everyone will find the beautiful, loving path within which shows the way into the higher frequencies. The preparation is not physical nearly so much as it is energetic. The physical world as we have known it is changing. We are spiritual beings having a human experience for a great and powerful purpose. It is up to us to stop making ourselves small and find that purpose. It cannot be found by trying to think of what you must do. It will be found by relaxing, going within to your core of strength and allowing the love that you are to guide you.

ASTROLOGY

NEW MOON

The New Year begins with a bang. A Solar Eclipse on January 4th moves us again to a totally new place. We are, with every movement of the planets “Bravely going where humanity has never been before.” Even if you have been there, the essence of the whole Universe is changing so rapidly that you really have never been “there” before. Jupiter and Uranus remain conjunct in Pisces and form a square to the GC signaling major changes in the basic philosophy of the collective consciousness. We are faced with a radical necessity to change how we relate to everyone, but most of all to make a clear, true relationship with ourselves.

Consider this: the Earth rotates at 7,000mph and orbits the Sun at ten times that speed, while wheeling through space around the Galactic Center at 500,000 mph. Even at those speeds the solar system only completes one circuit around the GC once every 225 million years. We are moving through areas of space where we have not been before. We are now at the end of the Age of Pisces and according to Mayan cosmology, the close of a 14-billion year evolutionary cycle. We are literally standing on the brink of something completely new and different.

The mind can go into worry over how long the Sun is going to last and yet we are emerging from the limits of the mental control and fear based beliefs that the boundaries of our world are at the tips of our fingers. We are moving from the optimism of Sagittarius to the grounded practicality of Capricorn. We must find greater truths and recognize the higher potential of humanity as a whole. At this New Moon, Saturn, ruler of Capricorn, squares the Sun and Moon and sets the course for more changes in perspective and where we are going in the practical, daily affairs of our lives. Saturn represents law of all kinds from physical laws to the limits we put on our lives through time and space. It covers the laws that humanity has created to govern everything from the legal system to customs and what we discern as “normal”. Saturn is very comfortable in the sign of Libra because Libra deals with all of these laws. However, another very vital point that Libra is associated with is relationship and the direct impact on how we relate among ourselves as family both personal unit and global unity is more all of the time. We are being brought up against our most cherished judgments and prejudices because as long as these remain in place there can be little shift in our consciousness.

Pluto continues its long (2008-2024) transit through Capricorn (Saturn’s sign) bringing pressure to bear on governments, businesses and institutions to forgive old methods of advantage taking and begin to conduct their affairs in a much more ethical manner. Pluto’s conjunction with Phallas which symbolizes social justice and the laws of manifestation just underlines Saturn’s imperative for integrity and personal accountability. On January 3 Pluto reaches the shadow point or degree of Capricorn where it went retrograde on April 6, 2010. This sets a standard for the types of goals that we must now set for ourselves as we move into 2011. Venus in Scorpio (Pluto’s sign) square to Chiron and Neptune in Aquarius and trine to Jupiter and Uranus in Pisces Makes it easier to find like-minded souls and hold stronger intensions for the discovery of viable alternatives to how we have allowed our emotions to drive us for so long.

Solar eclipses run in 19 year cycles. Almost two decades ago on January 4, 1992 there was a solar eclipse at 13 degrees 50 minutes Capricorn. On July 5, 2001 there was a lunar eclipse at 13 degrees 34 minutes Capricorn-Cancer. As we approach this current eclipse on January 4 perhaps it would be helpful to consider what was going on in your life in 1992 and 2001 what is requiring completion in your life today that was set in motion during that time? As this eclipse occurs in Vega, one of the brightest stars in the heavens will be located at 15 degrees 19 minutes of Capricorn. Vega was the northern pole star 14,000 years ago and will be again in another 14,000 years. Vega is associated with Maat, the goddess of divine wisdom who used a feather to weigh the hearts of the deceased souls, determining the readiness of the soul to evolve to the next dimension. Vega's square to Saturn is a reminder that we would be well served to attend more to the spirit rather than the letter of the law.

The Sabian Symbol for this eclipse at 14 degrees Capricorn requires a filtering process where we take only from our history the things that will further our evolution and leave the rest behind. "In a dense jungle, a perfectly preserved Mayan bas-relief demonstrates man power to leave permanent records of his achievements. The acceptance of personal immortality. The acceptance or escape from responsibility." This eclipse eases us another step forward toward owning our spiritual power. How we create is changing and the degree of energetic awareness is increasing. We are required to be alert, clear about our prayerful intensions at all times and responsible for what we think and feel as this immediately influences our own lives and the lives of those around us. Ask always, "Am I responding in Love?"

FULL MOON

The Full Moon on January 19 is the fourth of five Full Moons in a row that fall in the last degree of the sign. The Full Moon reveals what has been hidden. It shines light on our way and opens the occulted side of life so that we may use all of our power, rather than just half of it.

Capricorn is the tenth stage of archetypal development. It requires that we become our own authority, that we no longer look to others to tell us what to do or not to do with our lives. Through Capricorn we learn discipline and dedication, as well as, commitment and consequences. We are called to develop maturity and mastery. The shadow side of Capricorn can be either domination or submission; in each one we give our power away. Blame and guilt lock us into an endless cycle of victim, tyrant, rebel and martyr roles. Until we accept the fact that all of these choices are up to us.

Capricorn's opposite is Cancer, the foundational feminine aspect, which nurtures and protects life so it can reach maturity. This water sign teaches about what we eat and digest (food and emotion) and how we relate to our family, both birth family and cosmic family. Cancer can show us how our emotions are our own internal guidance system; the importance of where, how and with whom we live. Here we learn about sensitivity and caring, how we can nurture ourselves as well as others and the importance of safety and support. The shadow side of Cancer manifests when we are not in touch with our feelings and it can express itself as self-indulgence or self-sacrifice. The transiting lunar nodes, the points in space where the Moon crosses the orbit of the Earth around the Sun, have been in Capricorn-Cancer since August 22, 2009, continuing to take our power back, by releasing toxic patterns of dependency and entitlement.

Juno has played a big role in the last few Full Moons and just before this Full Moon Juno stations to go retrograde in Virgo, opposing the Jupiter/Uranus conjunction in Pisces. It will be trine the Sun and sextile the Moon. This continues the highlighted theme of masculine and feminine partnership and equality indicating the transformation away from the traditional "little woman" role of the past. The extended stay of Juno in Virgo and the ongoing opposition to Jupiter/Uranus represents a collective readiness to move beyond servitude and patriarchal dominance for the divine feminine. The Aquarian Age is about divine androgyny, a balanced relationship between masculine and feminine nature. The Soul is not male or female, but a blending of these qualities. Vesta, which is often associated with Virgo is conjunct the Galactic Center in Sagittarius squaring Juno, Jupiter and Uranus. This T-square has been influencing us since the beginning of December, 2010. This is just another nudge to keep us moving toward the integration of our masculine and feminine, so that we can create mutually beneficial relationships and a more peaceful world.

The Sabian symbols for this Full Moon advise that the past is only beneficial in that it brought us to where we are. What was is no more glorious than today. We are required to remember that as we see ourselves as watchdogs over the actions of others we are looking into mirrors that remind us “they are we”. For the Moon at 30 degrees Cancer: “A lady of aristocratic descent proudly addresses a club. The will and ability to maintain a social supremacy based on thoroughly established tradition. Inner or outer aristocracy.” For the Sun at 30 degrees Capricorn: The directors of a large firm meet in secret conference. Activity of inner formative elements of real personality. Massing of soul-energies in an emergency. Spiritual leadership.” In the past we have been assured that individuals were incapable of making decisions of any importance for ourselves. The balance of relationships that is now emerging honors the wisdom that each person carries within themselves. All of the major cosmic lights (planets in forward motion) are green until January 25, when Saturn becomes the first planet of the year to turn retrograde. Since this year is focused on preparing for the big changes that are coming as we move toward 2012 it is time to take some grand personal steps in order to clarify what is required for you to fulfill your goals. Get closer to nature this year as it is an integral part of remembering who we are. There is a vast difference between a nature walk and paying attention to what nature wants to share with you. Trees, rocks, birds, rivers and even the wind can bring messages that can direct the next step in the divinely appropriate direction.

THE GARDEN FAIRY

Sweet Violets

As I sit here watching it snow with sub-zero temperatures outside, I am reading my latest seed catalogs and dreaming of the first flowers and Herbs of Spring. One that comes to my mind is the Sweet Violets of Spring. While poking their heads out from under the melting snow reminding us that warm sunny, longer days are on their way!

The Ancient Greeks considered the Violet a symbol of fertility and love. They used it in love potions. Pliny recommended that a garland of them be worn about the head to ward off headaches and dizzy spells. The Romans enjoyed sweet violet wine; for Napoleon, it was the emblem of the imperial party. It was said to be among the most popular scents in Victorian England, and the last Empress Dowager of China imported bottles of “Violetta Regia” from Berlin. Revered writers from Homer to Shakespeare and the old herbalists all speak with great affection of this charming flower. Its virtues were considered to be cool, moist and soothing.

The heart shaped leaves, often with scalloped or slightly serrated edges are dark green, smooth or sometimes downy underneath, and grow in a rosette at the base of the plant. Roots are creeping and send out runners. Depending on soil and light the flowers may be from deep purple or blue to pinkish or even yellow whitish. All have 5 petals, which may have a yellow (fur) or beard on the inside of two of the petals, blooming from March to June. Gather flowers in full bloom, leaves anytime, and rootstock in fall. Dry root for later use.

Medicinal and edible, the flowers and leaves of viola are made into a syrup used in alternative medicine mainly for respiratory ailments associated with congestion, coughing, and sore throat. Flowers are also edible and used as food additives for instance in salad, made into jelly, and candied for decoration. Large doses of the root contain an alkaloid called violine which is emetic (causing vomiting). A decoction made from the root (dry herb) is used as a laxative. Tea made from the entire plant is used to treat digestive disorders and new research has detected the presence of a glycoside of salicylic acid (natural aspirin) which substantiates its use for centuries as a medicinal remedy for headache, body pains and as a sedative. The plants constituents are being studied and show these uses to be valid. Eugenol, Ferulic-acid, Kaempferol, Quercetin, Scopoletin, also show promise in the treatment of many kinds of cancer, arthritis, AIDS, gum disease and more. Used externally the fresh crushed leaves reduce swelling and soothe irritations. As a bath additive the fresh crushed flowers are soothing to the skin and the aroma is very relaxing.

Sweet Violet Cleansing Milk

½ Cup Creamy Milk

2 Tbsp. Sweet Violet flowers, fresh or dried

1. Heat together in a double boiler for 30 minutes. Do not let the milk boil or form a skin.
2. Leave to infuse for 2 hours, then strain. Keep refrigerated and use within 1 week. Apply with cotton wool and remove excess with tissues.

In my journey to wellness since I was diagnosed with uterine cancer in 2006 I have discovered so many things about nutrition. Many of the things that I have learned are about what is really good for us. Other things that I have learned from certified organic farmers tell a story that truly makes me aware that we can no longer just take what the FDA says for granted. We are totally responsible for what goes into our bodies and that is getting to be a bigger “game” all of the time. The worst part is that the government makes the most toxic foods the cheapest so that people will buy them as a “bargain”. After all if a twelve pack of Pepsi is cheaper than a pound of organic broccoli or a big Mac is cheaper than fresh vegetables then those who must watch their food budget closely will opt for filling their stomach rather than being well. The toxins that are added to our foods, many of which are labeled by the FDA as organic when they are loaded with chemicals is a crime against humanity, but we are truly responsible for what we eat. The healthier we are, the better we feel, the clearer our minds and the stronger we are to protect ourselves against the uncaring. Here is another article for your consideration. It is up to you to decide what you will do or not do for yourself. I am hoping your choice will be the loving, caring choice to eat only foods that you know are really organic and that you know where they come from. Love and light, Molly

Subject: Dangerous food additive, new name for aspartame

Date: Sun, 2 Jan 2011 08:38:20 -0500

It is well nigh time we stopped eating their food. They are putting neotame in livestock feed now and it is approved for organic labeling. They are not putting on the label. I stopped using pre-mixed feed years ago when I found out one of the preservatives was causing birth defects in dogs as high as 50 per cent! I did some serious research and decided we would from then on, buy organic minerals, etc., and grains and buy as much hay as possible from local growers we could trust, or grow our own.

New Chemical for Sweetening

USDA Certified Organics Dirty Little Secret: Neotame

By Barbara H. Peterson
Farm Wars

Just when we thought that buying Organic was safe, we run headlong into the deliberate poisoning of our organic food supply by the FDA in collusion with none other than the folks who brought us Aspartame. NutraSweet, a former Monsanto asset, has developed a new and improved version of this neurotoxin called Neotame.

Neotame has similar structure to aspartame except that, from its structure, appears to be even more toxic than aspartame. This potential increase in toxicity will make up for the fact that less will be used in diet drinks. Like aspartame, some of the concerns include gradual neurotoxic and immunotoxic damage from the combination of the formaldehyde metabolite (which is toxic at extremely low doses) and the excitotoxic amino acid. (Holisticmed.com)

But surely, this product would be labeled! NOT SO!!!
For this little gem, no labeling required. And it is even included in USDA Certified Organic food.

The food labeling requirements required for aspartame have now been dropped for Neotame, and no one is clear why this was allowed to happen. Neotame has been ruled acceptable, and without being included on the list of ingredients, for: USDA Certified Organic food items.

Certified Kosher products with the official letter k inside the circle on labels. (Janet Hull)

Let me make this perfectly clear. Neotame does not have to be included in ANY list of ingredients! So, if you buy processed food, whether USDA Certified Organic or not, that food most likely will contain Neotame because it is cost-effective, and since no one knows it is there, there is no public backlash similar to what is happening with Aspartame. A win/win situation!

But that's not all. Just love chowing down on that delicious steak? Well, that cow most likely will have been fed with feed containing..you guessed it..Neotame! A product called Sweetos, which is actually composed of Neotame, is being substituted for molasses in animal feed.

Sweetos is an economical substitute for molasses. Sweetos guarantees the masking of unpleasant tastes and odor and improves the palatability of feed. This product will be economical for farmers and manufacturers of cattle feed. It can also be used in mineral mixture, said Craig Petray, CEO, The NutraSweet Company, a division of Searle, which is a part of Monsanto. (Bungalow Bill)

Why would we feed animals food that is so distasteful that we would have to mask the unpleasantness with an artificial sweetener? Most animals will not eat spoiled, rancid feed. They know by the smell that it is not good. Enter Sweetos (Neotame). Just cover up the unpleasant tastes and odors, and you can feed them anything you want to, courtesy of the oh, so considerate folks at Monsanto and company.

But of course, Monsanto is no longer associated with NutraSweet. In the time-honored tradition of covering its assets, Monsanto has a proven track record of spinning off controversial portions of its company that generate too much scrutiny, such as it did with the Solutia solution.

Says the Farm Industry News, Monsanto, which has long resided in the crosshairs of public scorn and scrutiny, appears to have dodged at least one bullet by spinning off its industrial chemical business into a separate entity called Solutia a couple of years ago. Solutia has since been hammered by lawsuits regarding PCB contamination from what were once called Monsanto chemical plants in Alabama and other states (Source Watch)

So what is the solution to this problem? Buy local organic food, know your local farmer, and don't buy processed foods whether they are labeled Organic or not. This requires a drastic change in lifestyle that most will not want to make. For those who choose to ride the wheel of chance by succumbing to this genocidal adulteration of our food supply by those who stand to profit from our sickness and early demise, my only comment is..it is your choice.

I'm glad the author of this article has said again you cannot any longer eat processed food. Be careful, stay away from the aspartame poisons and don't forget that Ajinomoto to stumble you further has changed the name to AminoSweet. Remember these names, Aspartame, AminoSweet, Equal, Spoonful, Neotame, E951, Candarel, Benevia - and soon they are trying to get approved Advantame. Stay away from these poisons, MSG, www.truthinlabeling.org etc. Dr. Russell Blaylock, neurosurgeon, recommends Just Like Sugar, www.justlikesugarinc.com

TAROT TALK

Our Tarot card for the beginning of the year of Preparation is the Magician. The Magician works alone—not out of rebellion or separation, but because of the ability to define ones own desires when working with self. The Magician is neither dependant nor independent, but inter-dependant, allowing the synergy of all that could and would be of assistance without getting caught up in outcomes (who should do what and how or what the outcome should look like to be acceptable). The Magician has all of the tools of transformation and materialization. The Magicians tools are symbolized by the Aces. The Ace of Crystals is the brilliant mind, sharp and clear. The Ace of Cups is the flowering garden which represents grow and flowering of the spirit. The Ace of Worlds is health, wealth and success which let you hold the World in your hands. The Ace of Wands is your staff of illumination that energizes your way in the World.

The word Magician comes from the Proto-Indo-European word magh, which means “to be able to have power”. The I Ching Hexagram for the Magician is #1 Ch'ien/The Creative, which means “primal power.” The essence of power is the ability to make it happen. The Universal law symbolized by the Magician is talent—making your Fool-Child's hopes and dreams come true.

The Magicians power is explained by the Kabbalistic association of the Magician with the Hebrew letter,

Beth, which means “house”. A house is built by the application of scientific knowledge (Science in ancient times was called magik.)

The Magicians Rune is Ansuz, which symbolizes the use of word and song to make magik. Use your talents to express your Magik.

Use your imagination to visualize a world of possibilities. Weave your rainbow dreams into to reality. Communicate with passion and inspiration. Dance. Use the light. Act. Produce. Help others. You are a medium, a channel, a vehicle for the universe to express its energies. Be always open to the divinely appropriate timing. You can have magik anywhere, any time.

The Magician in your reading tells of new inspiration and opportunities to create. Live your best dreams and allow the life you are living to be the teaching. You can express talents that have lain dormant. You can expand the scope of current artistic outlets. You must be who you are. Self limit or self doubt simply stops the Magik and diverts its path. It could take you a while to find where the Magik went if you let fear into the mix.

This year St. Germain will talk about Personal Magik in the Evenings. He will discuss how we can let the power of our Magik change our lives. Magik is any amazing outcome, any dream fulfilled, any talent expanded, any miracle manifest in your life or your world. How does that make you a Magician? Because you choose to be a part of it.

ST. GERMAIN'S MESSAGE

Dearly Beloved Masters, as you enter this year of Preparation one of the most important pieces of preparedness you can make is to begin to allow a forgiveness of the necessity for specific outcomes. We tell you that as you enter the higher frequencies the power of your thoughts becomes progressively more potent. You think something and it happens and you are amazed or delighted or concerned. Yet the mind still wants to keep you believing that it was purely a coincidence. “It really didn't have anything to do with me”, you say. How many times do you have to have an experience before you begin to accept its validity? Your thoughts are how you create. In lower vibrational frequencies the measure of fear and doubt thoughts and positive up lifting thoughts often cancel each other out so that nothing happens. Then the mind (Ego) rushes in and tells you that God didn't hear your prayer or that you didn't pray hard enough. The closer that you move toward 2012 the faster the vibrations will move. Many will have a similar experience to being in extremely high altitude—you may feel sleepy, foggy minded, low on energy and/or ambition. We call you to begin now to raise your energy by visualizing beauty and harmony within. Breathe in beauty. Take the time to just sit and feel the wonder of your self. Let any disharmonious or angry thought pass away. Anger and fear are the most destructive energy you can entertain and you are encouraged to focus on angry fear-filled thoughts by the media with constant bombardment of war, job loss and threatening situations”.

As you allow the energy of how things must be to pass away you begin to feel the helpful, hopeful energy of healing flowing into your life. Letting go of outcomes is a great challenge and yet as you focus on just letting the highest and best outcome be with you in everything you begin to notice that what you might have thought was the best outcome pales in comparison to the results that are achieved by getting go of control.
