MARCH FULL MOON

March is a month of eclipses. The Full Moon (lunar eclipse) in Virgo brings more of the light of the Moon as it is not so reflective of the Sun at this time. This Full Moon puts attention on our spiritual life and the illusions that can come out of old perspectives of what spirit is. Virgo tends to keep our feet on the ground, but can add a note of cynicism or skepticism that can keep the beautiful spirituality of Pisces at a distance.

Uranus co-joins the Sun at the time of this eclipse and adds a measure of instability. It also brings excitement and a desire to step further into the unknown that we are being brought to in these times. Look for roller-coaster emotions vs. stubborn resistance to seeing things differently. The old order may seem more firmly entrenched in "how it was" than ever, as Uranus attempts to show us new horizons. Uranus so close to the Full Moon creates a download effect that will bring in a whole new flood of information on the intuitive, spiritual levels.

Some essences that will assist with overwhelm are Rabbit Brush and Indian Pink. You may find that both are very helpful in these chaotic energies.

Uranus squares Jupiter in Sagittarius. Upward mobility is a term can be applied to our insights and ascension process. Jupiter is the eternal optimist that can really be aggravating if you want to have a pity party. Pisces on its down side can really get into self-pity, so Jupiter is saying "Look up, look out, see the beauty and vast possibilities available".

Mars, Neptune and Mercury are all moving through Aquarius at the Full Moon putting focus on forward vision. Neptune rules Pisces (beliefs) and Uranus rules Aquarius (future vision and new technology). This mutual reception is asking and, sometimes even demanding, that we release our old belief systems to make room for new concepts of where we are going. The technology is as much within us as without.

Saturn in Leo continues to oppose Neptune in Aquarius holding us in a "feet on the ground, head in the stars" point that continues to call us to function in our center.

Mars in Aquarius can bring out new, high-tech weapons to make Mr. Bush's war even more expensive. In fact, the push-pull between the Democrats and the Republicans is one expression of what this Full Moon is showing us. Mercury in Aquarius is attempting to move our thinking into a higher perspective.

This Full Moon can put our focus on the consideration of what heroism is after all? If there are heroes, there must be victims. Since there are not and never really have been victims, except in the illusion then, perhaps everyone is truly a hero.

We have looked to others to be more powerful than we are, to lead us when we didn't know the way and to instruct us because we don't have a clear picture of what we are seeing. The aspects are moving us into position so that we cannot possibly say that we cannot see or don't understand. We must now face the fact that it has seemed easier for someone else to do the thinking for us and we could react if we didn't like their ideas. We are truly free thinkers and the planets are encouraging us to exercise the freedom, not in battle, but in fairness (Aquarius) and compassion (Pisces)

NEW MOON the New Moon occurs in the 28th degree of Pisces, which is considered to be a karmic degree. The last two degrees of a sign (finishing) and the first two degrees of a sign (beginning) are felt to be karmic in nature. This New Moon takes place the day before the Spring Equinox

The New Moon is in a square to Pluto in Sagittarius. The deep levels of compassion of Pisces are being drawn to follow the Archer's arrow into the unknown. The dictionary defines compassion as: Pity or sympathy for those who suffer. Perhaps it could be redefined as: A deeper love that comes from forgiving all that we have held against ourselves and others, in order to see the trials of life as gifts of strength and overcoming--a true gratitude. Pluto transforms and the old ways simply cannot keep going. There is a difference between tradition and stagnation. We must now examine what we are holding on to, to see if it is advancing us spiritually or just being ballast that keeps us from soaring.

The Sabian symbol for the 29th degree of Pisces is "Light breaking through a prism." This is a time of illumination that is calling us to recognize that even though we are many cultures, beliefs and colors, we all are pieces of light that come from one prism.

I have invited Linda Thomas, Woman of Crystals to present information about her wonderful crystals, each month. Here is her offering for March.

THE CRYSTAL CORNER

Addictions?! Compulsions?! Moi??? Most of us at some time in our life will find that we are focused on some one or some thing that prevents us from moving forward easily in our lives. Sometimes these emotions are very strong. We can be compulsive about anything. I read once that addictions are our way of remaining grounded when we are unable to deal with the energies that are surrounding us. We focus on things outside of ourselves so we don't have to look within.

In the crystal world, there are a number of stones that can help us to break addictions and compulsions and to understand what is behind them, in the first place. Some of these stones you would carry with you at all times and others could be used in drinking water or the bath.

The first two stones I will talk about are to be used as a pair. Rhodochrosite is an exquisite pink and white stone that will break up blocks in the entire body. This one helps to heal the addictions and compulsions. Variscite, its companion stone, helps those who simply will not accept their own truth. They will swallow most anything, food, drugs or ideas compulsively and destructively. This chalky green stone goes beyond the alcohol or drugs and gets to the issue that caused the alcohol, drugs or situations of the life to be there. It goes to the root cause of the compulsive behavior. For, if you would heal one of alcoholism, you would still not have necessarily touched why the addiction existed. Therefore the person would seek other addictions to take the place of the alcohol. This stone deals with any emotional determination to escape self, or the inability to face what one has created in the life. Variscite makes it easier to deal with ones self and provides a pathway into self for those who would run away from who they are. Placed on the bar at home or in public, this stone will broadcast an energy that will encourage overcoming for those with addictions to alcohol or drugs. This pair of stones would be most useful carried with you in a pocket or pouch/medicine bag.

Another stone that will assist in the healing of addictions and compulsions is Apatite. Isn't that a wonderful name? It comes in several colors and all work to assist people in the overcoming of addiction. It will ease the stress of the addictions and causes a sense of being full so there is no hunger of lack.

If anyone has questions or suggestions for the Crystal Corner, please feel free to contact me at eternalice@bresnan.net. I would love to hear from you. Check out Linda's website: www.eternal-ice.com for some of her great inventory
